

PEARL is an AAL research project with 8 international partners that will develop a platform to support older knowledge workers. The main goal of the project is to deploy motivating and age-friendly workspaces, on the basis of a unique blending of leading edge technologies for smart spaces, tools for time/project management and ICT utilities for cognitive and physical support.

Hybrid Calendar Tool ready for testing

Pen and paper are still common tools in the daily work routine, especially of older knowledge workers. Within PEARL, we developed a hybrid calendar tool combining pen and paper interaction with a digital display. This novel digitally-enhanced pen and paper solution relies on a page tracking mechanism to provide digital content to the selected page in an analogue paper calendar. With the

PEARL Midterm Review successful

The PEARL midterm review meeting took place on October 30th in Vienna. The consortium used the chance to present their achievements and got mainly positive feedback from the reviewers: the domain experts Norma Zanetti (IT) and Tore Langemyr (NO), the National Contact Points (Gerda Geyer (AT), Geja Langerveld (NL), Stephan Richter (DE)), and the programme officer Marco Carulli. In help of a digital pen hand-written text is digitized and can be used to create appointments, notes and To-dos that are synchronized with digital task- and time management tools like Google Calendar and Microsoft Outlook. In addition, notes can be marked and send to a whiteboard for further editing and collaboration with others. In March we will evaluate the prototype in the frame of the second lab trials.

the beginning of December we received the written recommendations by the Central Management Unit of the AAL Association, while the technical progress as well as the management and the dissemination activities were evaluated very positive, the main focus was the business development status. In the second half of the project, we will set the focus on developing valid business models.
